Dear Frank,

If I could do anything, or say anything, that would help you in your present sorrow and suffering
I would be so thankful.
I had meant to write to Emma ~~three~~ ^{days} ago and I never accomplished it until the very day she was laid to rest.
Lila Shields had tried to get me on Something for me, something that some one else perhaps wouldn't think of.

And all that time she was ill!! That night I was at your house at supper she looked so ill and when we were done I said to her "Emma do go for Dr. to another ~~visit~~ ^{visit} find out what is the matter", I was so anxious about her. The only morning I left she called me to come and see about my handling of Elizabeth. "Don't worry about her Jessie, she's all right". You do not know how treasure every moment

I was with her. The mere fact that I wrote her to ask her to do an errand for me, shows how I trusted her friendship and willingness to help me. I can not tell you what a blow I have had - I can't forget my loss. If I had not been back to the Springs and realizing her friendship for us all, I might not have been so keen. But I am glad to have seen her again, you may be sure.
But I must leave out to write only of your sorrow - Lancel and I money

Labor Day. As you

Sincerely yours,

Jessie Cook Wilcox
