

March 25, 1938.

My dear Ruth:-

My apologies. I made the mistake of making my first color print before I had finished up other things that should have been done. It is so absorbing and completely fascinating that I have been a bit "hay Wire" as the result, and will pull myself to-gether to-day.

Here are the proofs and I have incuded two or three more than you selected. Also I wonder if you would want to add any of the farm.

I solemnly promise to finish these up immediately upon hearing from you with the captions and any final choice, and my color experiments will have to wait!

I feel very much like some of the early movie people must have felt who had worked for years with a pantomime technique and suddenly the sound film hit them.

I am sending these to Charlston in the hope of catching you before you return to Albuquerque.

My best wishes, always,

Affectionately
