Dear Laura:

This is just a brief note of thanks and appreciation for the georgous flowers you sent me when I came home, and for your nice note about my poor old bones. I know of no one who can sympathize with me more thoroughly, and I appreciate it.

I have no pain and am getting along famously, and was up in a wheel chair two weeks after the break. However, I have the information from my doctor that the bone I broke is the bone that takes the longest to heal, so I shall be hobbling around in the wheel chair and on crutches for weeks and weeks and weeks.

I will try and hurry up the catalogue, and perhaps you ought to come down and attend to it soon and see me.

Affectionately yours,

RHS/m
