My dear Miss Gilpin:

I am putting on the finishing touches on the books for Mr. Cowles, also the boxes and expect to make shipment to you the beginning of next week, February 24th.

You will find that the books in this shipment will open up more easily than the Christmas consignment. I have bound your two volumes in cloth, the same construction by opening the four screws at the back - you will not have much difficulty in removing the sheets. I consider these two volumes as samples and as such there will be no charge for them.

I have not quite recovered from the Christmas "Rush", and orders have been piling up, however, with this large order completed I hope to catch up soon.

Very truly yours,

NATIONAL LIBRARY BINDERY CO.
