

January 26, 1942.

Miss Isabel C. Herdle,
Rochester Memorial Art Gallery
Rochester, N.Y.

Dear Miss Herdle:-

Thank you very much for your letter which came this morning. I shall have a complete list of the prints I am sending you in the air mail to-morrow. The prints will be shipped positively by Thursday, and on Wednesday if possible. This should assure their arrival to you on Monday Feb. 2nd.

I am sending a group of Southwest prints, on which I have been working continuously all month. There are three I wish to work on once more in the hopes of getting more exactly what I want, which is the reason I am not certain of the list at this moment. But I shall have to decide by to-morrow. I rush this off to you so that you may count on all information reaching you in the next few days, and to assure you of the shipping date of the prints. I do not think it will be necessary to insure the prints while they are in your gallery, and of-course the Express Co. does that in transit.

Please excuse a hurried note, but I want to rush this into the mail.

Very truly yours,