Dear Miss Allen:-

Your letter did not reach me until yesterday. I am sorry about our misunderstanding. As I recall now, I realized after I mailed my last letter to you that another group of prints would require another insurance policy, so I was waiting to see if you wanted it first! My other policy covers the prints wherever they are, but that is for the group that was in Dallas. That show must remain intact for it is scheduled for several showings from now until next fall.

I shall be glad to prepare another smaller group, but it will take a little time to do so. First will you let me know how many 16x20 mounts your cases will hold? Before I can assemble this group I will have to know how many prints are to be in it in order to make a comprehensive group.

The insurance can be taken care of, and the question now remains of how many prints and when. I am sure that you will realize that the smaller show will not have the divisions, letters, labels, and maps that the big show has, it will be a group of prints from book only. I fear that I could not afford to put this all together twice, for a smaller group, and I trust that my hand lettered captions on the prints themselves will suffice.

Hoping that this will have us both straight, and again my apology for not following up my last letter, I am

Very sincerely yours,
