

January 1,
1950

Mr. Allen Maxwell,
University Press in Dallas,
Dallas 5, Texas.

Dear Mr. Maxwell:-

Thank you very much for your letter. I hope that you located the prints and I hope too, that you found something to your liking. I am hoping that it is one of the Cypress Trees of Cerralvo. When you read the enclosed, you will see why. And I hope this is what you want for this border issue. It has been written under pressure, for the weeks since my return have been full to overflowing. I don't think I am much good when it comes to using the first person in an article, yet it seemed necessary. If you find too flagrant mistakes in syntax(!) please correct.

I must get this to the post office so that it will reach you the first thing Tuesday morning, so please pardon a hurried note.

This brings every good wish for the new year,

Cordially