Dear Miss Gilpin:

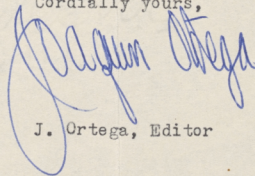

Shortly after returning from my trip to Santa Fe I fell ill with a bad attack of flu, from which I am still recovering. That is the reason for not having written you to extend my thanks and those of my son Jim for the gracious hospitality you and Miss Foster extended to us. What delicious food!!!

Thanks for your letter of the 22nd with the Author's File form. We will run the picture of White Sands as you suggest. How about the titles I suggested (1) "Faith" and (2) "Sand and Light" (for this second one I offered as alternatives: "Patterns on the Sand" or "Black and White"). Will you be good enough to answer this point at your earliest convenience?

By the way, have you seen a critique of your book The Rio Grande by our former student Theo R. Crevenna, published in the February, 1950, issue of Americas? This periodical is probably available at the Museum, but if you want, I could send you my copy.

With kindest regards for you and Miss Foster,

Cordially yours,
