Dear Miss Gilpin,

Your letter followed me back and forth across the country a couple times and finally caught up with me here yesterday.

The thing to do on the Viking is this: write to Dr Paul Fejos, Director of Research, Viking Fund, 14 E. 71st st New York City. He will then send you forms to fill out and, among other things, you will list me as one of your sponsors. Fejos will then correspond with me directly. They are now making grants again, but I should warn you that it will take some months to process an application and I am almost certain their Board does not meet again until fall. Also, they are deluged with applications. However, it is worth trying.

I shall be in Ramah--alas!--only one week this summer. We are up here for a real but brief vacation. Then I spend a week in Ramah attending to graduate students and other business and back to Cambridge for the remainder of the summer.

Mt Baldy is fairly often mentioned as one of the sacred mts. There is no real consistency except that San Francisco Peaks come into practically every list.

With good wishes,

Yours sincerely,
