Dear Miss Gilpin:

I have discussed the Thursday evening program with Dr. Powell and we have agreed that he should speak first, promptly at 8:30. I have suggested that he talk no more than 30 minutes, and less if possible. This will then leave you as much time thereafter as you would like, an hour if necessary, as ten o'clock is certainly not too late to keep an audience. How does this sound?

It appears that I am to preside at this particular session, and will have the pleasure of introducing you. Would you be willing to tell me a little about yourself — the sort of things you think an audience would like to hear about you? This will help me do a good job.

Yours sincerely,

Patricia P.
