Dear Laura:

I sure appreciate the top-notch job of photographing the sandpaintings and getting the prints to me so promptly.

I don't get down to Santa Fe often -- Janey is back, and I spend week-ends at the ranch in Seco -- but would love to see you and hear how things are up around Shanto. The last stronghold of the past.

The always-annoying business of finding the right publisher is something to be endured, not worried over too much. There are so many people waiting for your book that their very desire is bound to corrode the obdurateness of these damned publishers against something good. So let me know when it breaks.

Best,

Frank
