Dear Mr. Carlson:-

A very unfortunate mixup seems to have occurred in photographic credits in this last issue of your magazine. Some how, I seem to have been credited with the snapshots by the author of the Girl Scout article, Gillian Wethey. Where my name must have gotten mixed into this is that I did a series of heads of all the girls which Dr. Dutton hoped you would use in a border across the top of the pages, though Miss Wethey telephoned me even before I had seen the issue to tell me how sorry she was and that everything had been quite clearly marked.

It is not a matter of great importance other than I don't particularly care for being given credit for some very amateurish snapshots. Certainly anyone who knows my work will realize that there has been an error. However, I would appreciate some slight correction of identification in the next issue if that is possible.

With many thanks, I am

Very truly yours,
