Maybe by now, my dear Laura, you have given me up as a bad job. And I would not blame you, at all. I give myself up, in despair, every now and then, as a very bad job. We have been back East almost three weeks. But away twice. To Edgartown, and to Marionville, Long Island. And going away just seems to compound the error of my ways. Forgive me, please.

Nancy Bond is enchanted with the color print of me standing against the high boy. She finds it thorowly satisfying. Sheila is not so pleased, but wants one just the same. I'm sure Happy will accept one with pleasure. As an indication of my thought of him. And Gardiner is non-committal.

So lets have four prints of the color plate of me in front of the lovely highboy.

Maybe you can do a bit of re-touching here and there. Which I leave to your discretion. You know better than I. These photographs are so much better than any that have ever been taken of me, that I am grateful to you for such a lovely composition. I showed the print to an artist friend of mine, and she finds it, in every way, an outstanding example of artistry.

Do include the bill when you send me the photographs. I feel very much in your debt.

Hope you have had a good summer. With success in all your undertakings, and not too much pressure. Physical well being, and pleasant social contacts.

Affectionately,

Anne
