Dear Laura Gilpin:

I was going through my correspondence today and noticed that I had not heard from you about the Wittick photographs since March 4. It occurred to me that perhaps you had not received my second letter in which I answered certain questions you had asked me in your reply to my first letter. The black thought also crossed my mind that you were having trouble with the Laboratory of Anthropology in getting the Wittick negatives. Actually I hope neither of these has happened and that we will be getting the prints rather soon. We have reached a stage in the work on our book where the Wittick photographs will be of great help.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, reading "Chester Sprague". The script is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Chester" being more prominent and the last name "Sprague" following in a similar style.
