Dear Mr. Contney:-

For several weeks I have been trying to remake this transparency. The Bank would not permit shipping it or even taking it out of the bank. So I have remade it with polar screens on lights as well as lens and I hope that this time you will find it free of any reflections.

The order still stands as sent in to you at first, two dye transfer prints, 8x10, the painting only eliminate the frame. There is a second transparency including the whole frame which the president of the bank wanted at the time, but for the prints, no frame. I send both for your selection. Just return them all with the finished order including the first transparency I sent you.

At first these were wanted for Christmas, but as it turned out, that was impossible so that is the reason for my delay.

I sent you $50. on account, and if you will bill me for the balance when the work is finished.

Thanking you for all your trouble, I am

Sincerely yours,
