Mrs Alice Bullock,
Santa Fe, New Mexico

Dear Mrs Bullock:

My wife and I had the pleasure of meeting you at Tucson last June, at the WWA convention. And today we've read and enjoyed your article on book reviewing in the current Roundup.

We are not sure yet whether we'll get 50 go to Medford but are hoping.

I was one of the judges in the Western Heritage Book Awards and during the early spring had to read 23 fine non-fiction books on western history. They were all fine books and choosing a first wasn't easy. My final vote for first place went to a fellow townsman of yours, Laura Gilpin, for her beautiful THE ENDURING NAVAJO. Some of the other judges must have felt the same way, because I'm informed that Mrs. Gilpin's book tied for first place with another book. If you haven't read it, be sure to do so. The photographic illustrations in it are something to look at again and again.

Very sincerely,

Allan Vaughan Elston
