Dear Becky:

I am sorry to be so long in answering your letter about my book. This is indeed an interesting project of yours to get a correspondence group going among the Indian tribes, though I am afraid that many of the Navaho and even a good many of the Pueblo people around here are not very inclined to write letters. I am glad, however, that you have found some Navaho pen pals. I have been away for a while. As soon as I am able I will try to get out to some of the Pueblo villages near here and see if I can find somebody who would be interested in writing to you.

Thanking you again for your very nice letter, I am

Very truly yours,

BECKY BRANTNER
