

Dear Betsy:-

How goes everything with you? I think of my visit with you with much pleasure and wish I saw you more often. Don't you ever come this way? I wish you would.

Right now I want to tell you of two superlative musicians who live now here in Santa Fe. They are Frances Archer and Beverly Gile singers who have raised folk music to a fine art of the first order. They have sung with Community Concerts for some twelve years or more, and with Columbia Artists for several more. Now are semi-retired, each having a home here in Santa Fe. It is funny how you can miss meeting people here when every one is busy. I have gotten to know Beverly Gile very well in the last few months as she is very keen about photography and I am giving her some lessons at the present. While I find that they have sung in some twelve hundred cities in this country plus quite a European tour, they have never sung in Colorado Springs. I suggest a concert at the Art Center, you would love what they do. As this special field is somewhat difficult to describe, I have some records I wish you could hear. Now why don't you hop in that plane and fly down? Then you could hear them and meet them. I know it is late in the year for this, but it is not too early to think about next year, or next fall. These two have the most perfectly blended voices I have ever heard and their musicianship is just tops. Beverly plays a guitar accompaniment very subtly and very beautifully.

Have you seen Agnes recently? She and Sally were here not long ago, and I thought Agnes looked very badly, I was concerned about her.

This brings my best greetings and the hope that this will bring you down. I assure you that this will be a treat in store to hear these two.

Much love
