Dear Laura,

It is great to have an excuse and opportunity to establish touch with you again. I've seen and read your "Enduring Navajo" and with the greatest pleasure. It is a beautiful book and you must be delighted with it.

Apropos of which -- You may or may not know that I have been working as an art editor for Ginn and Company for the last seven years - job to collect illustrative material for our books. It has been interesting and arduous. We are about to publish an American History book for which I would love to have a print of the tribal Council meeting of which I enclose a stat. In addition, I need a picture of a plaza-Mexican style and I think immediately of the one in old-town Albuquerque. You must have photographed it more than once. It doesn't have to be that one but something of that sort. Can you help me out on these and what would you charge for one-timed editorial use?

Both the kids are married as you may know. Lots of water under the bridge.

I'll look forward to hearing from you.

My fondest regards,

Betsy
