Dear Miss Gilpin,

I was saddened to return to Santa Fe after the Holidays and to read about the death of your dear friend, Marjorie Forster who Mr. Bill Meekel and I met at your house last year when we talked about the possible photographic study of the Older New Mexican.

Although Marjorie is now at Peace after her long illness I know that you must miss her very much as she played such a significant role in your life both personally and professionally for so many wonderful, productive years.

In many ways your books about the Indians are monuments to Miss Forster and memory of her and appreciation for her will be enshrined in them for all who knew and loved her.

I trust that you are well and enduring this bitter cold weather, and wish for you good health, good travelling conditions, enriched imagination for more photographs and books, and a new year of many satisfactions.

Sincerely yours -
R. Rose Wood.
