Dear Laura Gilpin:

I was happy to receive the prints this week. Sorry to have been such a pest about it, but it wasn't just ~~that~~ the schedule demanded we have them, I very much wanted them, in general (to go with your "quote").

Oddly, one of the photos you sent was different from the one I thought I asked for, but I like it as well -- or better-- since it shows so clearly coin buttons, something we didn't have shown anywhere else.

I also liked the fact that it is probably a "less-used" photograph. The only question is, is it okay to still use the caption I took over the phone for this photo:

"Navajo medicine woman photographed by Laura Gilpin at a Squaw Dance up in the mountain in 1934."

In other words, if this caption, which will now appear on the photograph marked A on the accompanying xeroxes absolutely will not do, please let me know immediately what should be used as a caption. (The xerox marked B is the photo I thought I was asking for.)

Sincerely,

Carol Cartaino
