Dear Laura Gilpin:

It's been a while now since I skipped over that muddy track up to your door--and good grief, there's a finished book--SKYSTONE AND SILVER--to show for it now. (It's not all that I would have it be, but I've learned a lot about how I'll go about it next time. A schedule like that one is hard on perfectionism.) Whatever merits it does have, you've had a clear hand in establishing.

(My tortured way of saying I think your "cameo quote" and your pictures, add "a fair piece" to the book.)

To finally put the check for payment of our use of your photos, in process (5 black and white photos at $25.00 each). I have discovered I need an actual invoice from you on letterhead with your signature, saying: "For permission to use in book SKYSTONE AND SILVER by Rosnek and Stacey.* (Nice as that lovely textured, tinted paper is, it didn't do quite what I would have had it do, for your strikingly sharp black and whites.)

Many thanks for your graciousness (and I hope I shall have excuse to call on you again).

Sincerely,

Carol Cartaino
