Dear Ms. Gilprin,

I enjoyed talking with you last week (I am sorry that I interrupted your supper, though!) and have sent you a copy of the magazine in a separate envelope.

We would love to do a story based on your photographs of Ship Rock, showing the changes that have taken place between the time you took the first photos and the time you took the second ones. I would envision the story as a straightforward one, using the photos as large as possible to let them speak for themselves about what has happened in the last fifty years in the Four Corners' area. I know that you have been very busy with your show, and don't want to add any pressures, but we would so very much like to publish your photographs. We would of course pay you for their use, and would work with you in printing them so that the quality was not compromised, nor the content of the story anything you would object to.

I'd like to call you again in a few weeks, and hope that things may have settled down for you a bit and that we could talk about having the photos printed for a future issue of Outside. I'll look forward to talking with you further. Meanwhile best of luck with your current show.

Sincerely yours,

Karen Evans
