Dear Ms. Brush-Morales:

In response to your recent letter I can report that the Art Association's treasurer will not process payment for material that has not been received. You may recall that in the instance of Miss Gilpin's photographs, there was one print, "The View of the Cliff Palace," which was to be reprinted for our collection. I took with me a proof print which was not in mint condition. As soon as the new print is received payment will proceed at once.

I believe also that there is a misunderstanding about a down payment. As I recall, my wife bought the small photograph of Christmas Candles for herself and paid for it with her check in the amount of fifty dollars.

I trust that this will help to clarify your records.

Sincerely,

Norman A. Geske
Director
