Dear Ms. Gilpin,

I am writing once again from the Handbook of North American Indians, after a long lapse of time (for which I apologize). I last corresponded with you last June when you very kindly agreed to let us publish some of your photos in the Southwest volumes of the Handbook. I was going to get back in touch with you when I was more certain as to exactly which photos we would definitely want to publish.

The long delay was caused by my working almost exclusively on a different volume of the Handbook; I am now working once again on Southwest materials. If you would still be willing to allow us to publish some of your photos, they would be most welcome.

I will be in the Southwest (starting with Santa Fe) from March 26 - April 10, in an effort to locate illustrations materials in the museums and collections there, and confer with our volume editor (Alfonso Ortiz) and several of our authors. I would find it extremely helpful to be able to speak with you during the week that I will be in Santa Fe (March 26 - April 3), and would very much appreciate the opportunity to do so. I will telephone you once I arrive to see if we could arrange to meet.

Thank you very much. I will be looking forward to speaking to you.

Sincerely,

Laura Greenberg
