Dear Sir or Ms.:

I am revising my college textbook, MAN CREATES ART CREATES MAN. This second edition will be published by Canfield Press, a department of Harper and Row, in Spring 1978. The book will be paperbound, 430 pp. long, and will sell for approximately $11.95.

I would like permission from you, as the copyright holder/owner to reproduce the following work(s) in this and all subsequent editions:

Photograph of North Pueblo and Taos Mountain from "A Taos Mosaic" by Claire Morrill, 1973. Photo is illus. #3, taken by Laura Gilpin

Permission is requested for English language rights throughout the world. (Please note that export sales, outside the U.S.A., will probably not exceed 6% of the total sales.) Credit will be given in the caption for each illustration, with photo credits listed in the back matter.

Will you please supply me with an original color transparency/black and white print (8 x 10") from which to make the necessary reproduction(s)?

For your convenience a release form is given below, and a copy is enclosed for your files.

If you are unable to supply me with this or a similar photo of a Pueblo, I could probably make an adequate reproduction from the above book.

A prompt reply will be greatly appreciated.
I am trying to meet a March 1 deadline.

Sincerely,

Duane Preble

Duane Preble

I hereby grant permission to use the work(s) listed above under conditions listed above.

Dear Mr. Preble: By contract, we are unable to give you permission to use Laura Gilpin's photographs. You will have to write to her directly. The following is her address in Santa Fe, NM.
