Mr. Frank Wardlaw,
University of Texas Press,
Austin, Texas.

Dear Frank:-

As so often happens one letter comes just after mailing one to the same person.

I telephoned the Owings last evening and it sounds as though they will back us on the color.
Rather than wait for the mail man, Mr. Owings will be here this morning to get your letter.
He is a dynamo of action so I am sure you will hear from him almost as soon as you get this.

I fear I must not have expressed myself very well, for I was in no way meaning that I wanted to do the layout for the book. Only that I could see here while you were working down there, just how the pages might fall. I know, ofcourse that you have a most able person. It is just my great interest in all phases of book making. William Blake was long a hero in my younger days.

The list of errors which you sent yesterday, is now out of date, as I found more and completely remade the list which I sent down to you over two weeks ago, along with the slight changes in text.

I do not wish to sound as though I thought this is the only book you have under way! If I were not so limited physically in my own activities at the present time, I would be very busy about something else.

Do let me know soon what Mr. & Mrs. Owings do,
The best of wishes,
