Dear Mrs. Sharpe:

Thank you very much for your letter, and I am pleased to tell you that the check arrived yesterday. The reason for my inquiry about Senator Goldwater's purchase of his copy of the book, you will understand when you read the enclosed copy of his letter. As you see, it suggests that you had sent him a complimentary copy, and I am sure that you will all get a great chuckle over the typographical error in the last sentence. I have had a lot of fun with this.

Will you please tell Mr. Wardlaw that my Washington show has been delayed and I still don't know the opening date, but presume it will be within the first 15 days of March. I do not know what he has done regarding the Today Show, so I do not know if he has made any definite plan regarding this. I shall go directly to Washington from here for the opening of my show there, and then go on to New York.

With best wishes to all of you,

Sincerely,

Laura Gilpin
