Dear Laura Gilpin:

Thank you for your letter of April 16 which was acknowledged in my absence by Mrs. Winsborough.

It is probably a blessing to us that the completion of your manuscript has been delayed, since our publishing agenda is extremely crowded at present with a number of large and expensive projects. A few months from now we will stand a much better chance of accepting your book for publication.

The delay has caused us no inconvenience whatsoever. We don't put a book on even a tentative editorial or production schedule until after the manuscript has been received and accepted.

Our interest in your book continues to be very strong indeed.

With all good wishes, I am

Very cordially yours,
