Dear Miss Gilpin:

You will be glad to learn that we have received the galley proofs for The Enduring Navaho.

Will you please read the enclosed uncorrected galley proofs for substantive error only. Our proofreaders will check the galleys very closely; however, if you should notice a type or two, we would be grateful for your indication of the error. But we expect from you only the correction of factual error. Of course, you realize that at this stage revision for style is not allowable. I am afraid that I must be arbitrary and ask that you have the galley proofs back to me by April 29, so that we can note your corrections, page the text, and return the proofs to the printer as quickly as possible.

When the page proofs are ready I will send you a set to use in making your Index, and, for a final check of both pictures and text, I will send a set of the vandyke page proofs when they are available.

Best wishes to you.

Sincerely,

Barbara Spielman
