Dear Ms. Gilpin:

Thank you for your response to my letter of mid-May regarding the manuscript on Kate Cory's experiences with the Hopi. We appreciate your sharing your opinion with us, and certainly understand the busy state which prevented your responding sooner.

In your final paragraph you mention a letter "regarding the availability of prints from the Rio Grande book" which came to you from the Press. There has been some confusion about this, I'm afraid, since I did not write such a letter. I have asked a number of people here at the Press about it, and cannot locate the sender. It is possible, however, that Steve Rice, formerly our Marketing Manager, sent it, and he is no longer with the Press. If the matter appears important to you, you might write to Delton Simmons, our new Marketing Manager, about it.

With our good wishes.

Sincerely yours,
