Dear Miss Farr:-

The last proofs finally allcame in together and here they are. There are still many corrections. I understood that your Spanish expert would go over for all Spanish accents and spelling. Dr. Anderson of the Museum here who is a real expert in both Spanish and History has gone over the entire text. Corrections on Page 124 will have to be made as the way it now stands "Santa Fe, capital of New Spain" is wrong. That capital is Mexico City. You will understand correction which I have made to involve the least amount of type setting.

There are still some mis-spelled words and names and great inconsistency in accents.. I believe that you will find everything clear. A few pages need re arranging of type body.

I enclose also the corrected proof on the Appendix. This contains many errors. Much of it mine. I believe that we all forgot to go over this. This is the first proof I have seen.

The copyright page is O.K.

The proof of the half-tone has a mark down the center which I am sure must be a rub on the proof. Otherwise O.K.

This should reach you Tuesday without fail, as it comes air mail Special Delivery.

Sincerely yours,
