

LAURA GILPIN.

REDGRANDE, RIVER OF DESTINY

REVISED COPY.

Page 28.

beginning line 8 of Paragraph "The Cowboy's trappings.."

"chaparral, that dense thicket of thorny shrubs covering the Texas range. This name was abbreviated to 'chaps' and use of the garment was quickly adopted by all Western cattlemen."

Page 220.

Do you have sentence "Palms stand sentinel.." on this page beneath narrow palm picture?

Page 221.

second paragraph of material for this page beginning;-

"The development of the citrus groves in the delta has been spectacular. Following ~~the~~ early experiments in the rich soil brought down to the delta by the Rio Grande, the groves have been constantly expanded."

(This much is the same, repeat here for clarity)

"Like pendant balls on a Christmas tree, grapefruit hang from slender stems which seem scarcely strong enough to hold such weight." (slight change in copy, preferable but not necessary)

The deleted material from this second paragraph changed to be incorporated on page 223.

Page 223.

"All citrus fruit is grown from graftings on the sour-orange root; none from parent stock. The Texas crop includes grapefruit, oranges, ~~and~~ tangerines, limes and lemons, and newly developed crosses. As boxes are filled with the luscious white or pink...(continue as original).