Dear Laura:

How nice to hear from you in your letter of February 28 and to assume from it that you are in the best of health and spirits, as am I.

TEMPLES IN YUCATAN is still in print, although we don't have very many left and I know that we seem to sell small amounts each season, probably too small to report every six months. I'll look into it and see what the balance is.

I had completely forgotten about your NAVAHO book, and have just had it put on my desk. Strange how it makes me tingle again at the remembrance of those great open spaces in your country and makes me want to go out there again soon.

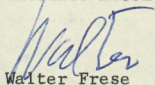

As a matter of fact, if by any chance your University Press should change its mind about the book, we'd like to re-consider it if you could bring us up-to-date on the new material.

And a new book on the Maya would be something we'd like to talk over with you, if you would care to. This was the type of book which prompted me to start Hastings House -- to tell the world about America.

Warm personal greetings, and best wishes.

Sincerely yours,

HASTINGS HOUSE
