Dear Nell,

So near to you and not to be able to go to you at once! Paula feels not well these last days, so I have to wait and hope you will still be there when I take the train to Amsterdam and, of course, Wassenaar.

I am extremely happy to hear Eschedé is all right. If I should have to miss the joy to see you back before you leave Europe, you may rely on it that I will call on Dr. Ginnip as soon as I will go to Holland.

I knew "Die Welt des Schweigens" would be just what you need now. It is an excellent medicine, when you feel tired and longing to go Home.

You ask me whether my book is finished. Unfortunately I am not yet so far. I will have to work - and to work hard - at least until the end of this year before I will be able to send Elsevier the whole copy.

Did you receive the letter I wrote to you in Austria on August 31 With a translation of a page of Frank's Diary?

We all deeply hope your sad and trying experience of those last months will soon be forgotten.

With our love to all of you Always and ever
Your Herman.

P.S. Included some of the snapshots
I made of you. I could of course have done much better, but as they are, I am very happy with them.
