Dearest One.

Here I am after a change & dinner with the Juchs I feel they ask an hour & a half at the airport & the plane leaves at 8 A.M. So Jung will be here at 6—

It has been a real week hasn't it. Sunshine and rain but the sunshine will remain in our hearts and I shall think of it as a glimpse into one way of living that has charm for us both & that we know at least two places where we could go & snuggle down for a time anyway & that we did not know a week ago.

I go back to find out whether I should go back or not but knowing I should be pushing forward on lines of importance to both our lives.

I can hear you say Cohen do we begin to live & realize that in doing so you overlook the fact that you have lived

many years radiating happiness
to so many & more than sharing the loads that have brought too you.

What is living? not the 3 meals per day & needed sleep
but the sensing & enjoying the pulse of life & the beauty around us in people & things & above
all in the spiritual meaning that they lived for seekers after that elusive god or goddess TRUTH.

You & other poets can say what I strongly feel - the real life that is around us both in rich & poor.

The little girl is a dear & Margery has a breadth she has gotten both from Vassar & her work with expandmuds I didn't realize before.
I like her much. I feel they know Angela at the library at R.

of the waters & good health at the Corrly Falls and come back when you are ready, refreshed & full of ideas for "the book."

I can think of no place that I can see you visit so happily.

I can sure a few days quiet rest will do mine a lot & good also, for it hasn't been an easy job looking after us both, & with you only at rare rests as well as inspiration.

I am not sure of my own movements but unless I feel it essential to get myself West I have plenty to do in getting jobs done in the East and after all, I am supposed to be getting ready to clean house & see a fixed income with out real effort on my part.

Unless other things are much worse than expected I am in that the Grothe order will remove the specter of passing the June 1st dividend with the drop in values which it implies. And that unless it prevents overhead cuts as well we may be safer for the rest of the year.

Again "Money" no wonder you think it is my God, or I am tempted to put it out of my control to avoid your feeling so about me. — Old stuff. The sun will shine as brightly anyway & I can always remember Bill (or is it Phil) Platt & his perfect happiness in Tasco. I could probably do it easier at a waterfall & so could you. I don't drive to Mexico City at night. It takes cats eyes & such to me is a wonder.

God bless, dearest one, & come back mentally & physically rested. We all will be welcoming you.

Yours

J.
