Dea Dear Nell,

A word in haste. Penn Jones was just here late tonight after a speech in Ft. Worth. He has been with Newsweek editors all day. They are to do a feature on him; and tomorrow, Walter Kronkite comes in the morning to interview him. The show will probably run next Monday or Tuesday and I knew you would want to watch it.

Also Penn flies to Washington for a Press Conference on Monday, then to New York for appearances on Tuesday. He will rest Wednesday morning, run to Princeton to see Jacques Maritain in the afternoon and hopes to come and see you late Wednesday afternoon or night. His visits are always brief, but he does want to see you and I hope he can make it and that that time is free for you. He only found out today that he will be there, so I promised him I would write and give you some notice. If you can manage to see him, you will love him as he does you and as we do him.

More when I have a moment unsedated.

Best love to you from all of us here,

John
