Beloved Nell,

Quickly to tell you that I immediately wrote a letter for Jacques to sign, giving you permission for the quote from Creative Intuition, and sent it to him with an addressed envelope to you: all he has to do is sign it, stick it in the envelope and drop it in the mail to you - so there is no problem and you will get it back by airmail very shortly. You can inform Mr. Tuton that the matter has been taken care of. This was not really necessary. Jacques would be delighted for you to use anything, but I know the publishers feel better about having such things in black and white. I am returning the letter from Mr. Miss. Mrs. (?) Tuton for your files, if you have such.

All for the moment. My mouth aches for your pain, and we are so sorry. Tomorrow will be the last, thank God. It has been too long, too much. Thank heavens it could be done, though; and we pray that soon the healing will be achieved and the pain only a distant memory.

Best love to you always,

John

Piedy completely recovered.
