Dear Nell:

Many thanks for your letter, and your very explicit instructions. I invariably get lost, so that it usually takes me years to reach any destination outside the limits of Greater New York, but I'll aim for arrival about noon. Please do not let me interfere with any plans you may have for the morning, as I'll sit on the lawn and wait for you. I expect to disintegrate when the air touches me!

I am so looking forward to Thursday! With gratitude and love -

As always,

Grace
