

Hare you got a brook in your little heart , Where bashful flowers blow,
And blushing birds go down to drink , And shadows tremble so ?

And nobody knows, so still it flows ,
That any brook is there ;
And yet your little draught of life Is daily drunken there .
(Emily Dickinson)

Dearest Mel .

A Little poem for early spring when somehow meanings are delicately expressed. Our spring has been exquisite .

I am so sorry that you are not well . I urge you to rest . How I am hoping someone is with you . It is so useless being so far away .
I think that I shall never learn acceptance. Since I can't be there I send a love - and a few promises which renew me with the early spring.

How I would have you see these blossoms, cherry and plum, bursting in the bright light of many sunny days!

I am pruning the branches.
I am trying to work to improve my darkroom work. With only pictures of flowers and plants, I am trying to understand the whole process in its details.
A good discipline, I hope - and a thoughtful, solitary, deepening experience.

Meantime - I am reading poetry and finding great corners and paths that were not there before -

Please send me word if

2. anything would please you — books, pictures... I shall send pictures when they are good enough. Meanwhile take these little birthday pictures of Kate & Anne on Kate's 1st birthday - Feb 11. Perhaps they tell a little the more that Kate is. She is all squishy and soft still, lazy and jolly but quick to laugh and "talk". Anne is such a BIG one with Kate - and so very understanding - most of the time!

Take our love - it's yours.
Greta.
