Dear Neil,

Two nice things have happened:

1. We have raised the $50,000 we needed to continue.
2. I have concluded, anyway, that I do not want, EVER, to seek money from you. (I regard that as a "nice," and overdue, thought.) We are better friends than financiers. If we discuss money that way again, let it be at the time of another book or a new printing of Mother & Child.

Now, how shall we pay you for royalties and for copies we sell of OF NIGHT AND DAY?

Love,

Mitchell

(and rather nice)
P.S. Strange things can happen when a prominent poet reviews photography...
