Tuesday

Dearest Nell,

It has been sad at The Posada since you left but last evening we bought some good dark bread and picnicked in the room, toasting both you and time with mineral water — ah, Mexico!

Seeing you anywhere is so refreshing for us — somehow being together brings us to the essentials again and we gather strength from it. Our last talks together gave us much to think on. I wish there could have been more time — but there will be — for now we will see and feel Mexico, hoping to draw closer to the Five Feet as we have time to go out into the country.

Today we drove over the sierra to Puebla to gather our mail and see the town. It is appealing to our hispanified eyes and we secretly wish that it were our city — This confusing city of Mexico is too large — but we will make our quiet corner in it and being at Mrs. Plummers in San Angel will be the best.

Anne is much better. We took her to the doctor today and she is on some medicine which should attack the little "beasts" quickly. Today, however, she was in the best of spirits which, of course, means that we were too!

Let us hear from you. We will write soon — more fully, more thoughtfully. Meanwhile we thank you for value and for being near
