Dear Nell -

Just a few days ago I received your 14 mail letter, and it was really welcome. It was as to get letters from you - it's hard to describe but they mean more to me than words can tell. I'm sorry that you have had so many worries these past few months - would that I could be there to try to help.

Lately I have been doing a lot of sight-seeing. North Africa does have many beautiful spots - the villages are most interesting, and the native Berbers are a queer race of people - most of them are dirty and, they say, untrustworthy; but they are very devout in their religion and strict in their customs. Someday when the war is over, I want to see much of North Africa. Right now, the main thing I want is to get back home - I pray that this war will soon be over.

I love you,
Mags
