Sam - at so late a date. It is a small school of about 42 boys. Young Sam is all impatience to begin, and I hope his delightful enthusiasm will not be chilled.

Everyone has been the soul of kindness to us. I've never known such interest or thoughtfulness as we have met with, we are quite overcome.

We've just returned for a delightful weekend at Gertrude & Harold's. They are indeed the dearest people. They send you their love.

Palms here, Peggy Faulkner called us up a few days ago and we are to get - touch with them soon. How sweet of Godpa to write them, do thank him -

We see & do all sorts of exciting things which I'll have to tell of - another letter.

We feel so at ease in our minds to think of Margaret - our beloved Red House. I know she will do a wonderful job. Everyone who has met her speaks so enthusiastically of her. What a miracle it was to find such a person sitting right in your apartment. You were just too clever to suggest it.

Big Sam is slowly coming down - I feel that once little Sam is in school and we get on to a more regular routine he will be even better. He was the one who found Wellhouse the school - that wonderful way he has. We all adore you! B.
