Nell mon darling,

Bellamy and I are counting the days to Monday morning!!

It was so pleasant, — I had hoped to persuade you to return with us, when Mum read me from your letter the part where you mentioned coming back with us! Please, please please plan on it. We just couldn't think of anything more nice. So do get a ticket and a berth right away. Seth is counting on your coming, as he feels sad at not being able to come. But he thinks if you come back and make cookies that everything will be quite all right.

You could see the little big house too. Oh you must plan on returning; you must, you must you must. What fun we could have!

Oh I love you so and I just can't tell you how much we are looking forward to Monday.

Mum got off in fine style. We are just hoping she will make the trip safely.

There is so much to tell you. So many drawings to show you.

Love and love and still more love,
