

⑦ His name is Diehl and he is the one who made the spectacular rescue of the survivors of Mono Castle and was given a medal of honor - I have heard it twice from his lips to night and have a suspicion I shall hear it many more before two days are up.

It's cold to night - I should have brought my old leather coat. I have two blankets over me in bed and am huddled to my skin - rain and cold wind outside - but here I lose it! Forgive writing - the bed feels wobbly - worse than a

Savannah

OCEAN STEAMSHIP COMPANY OF SAVANNAH

Blessed. Just a line before I go to bed - so tired - yet so peaceful - with rain on my roof - Bless you dear - bless you - bless you for making it possible!

There are only a handful of passengers aboard - I think not more than ten! And all nice - not exciting you == would say - But it looks to me like a blissful two days ahead. We sit next to the Captain at table - a big burley german with atrocious table manners and no abiding grace -

(7) Train -

That's leaving you to-day - I began missing you before you were gone! Bless you John dear. With a wobbly pencil and paper I had best not try to tell you - but only ask you remember. I shall turn out my little bed side light - and listen to the rain on the deck - the music of the waves - and so to sleep.

It is raining on both of us - good-night John - I send you a special rainy good-night from the great at Pant. C.

Tuesday 11 am.

Breakfast at 8 - still raining and cold - couldn't walk on deck but found a sheltered corner for our deck chairs where we huddled into blankets and revelled in rain at sea. It is still rough - four out of our ten passengers ^{four} here under the weather.
Mrs Lamer is a delightful companion and I love her - hope we can do things
