Dearest.

I just couldn't stay wandering around trying to see the answer. so I have come into town and will try to get away from ~~every thought~~ that is personal for a while.

You have this when you leave in the morning - and I can already see how small and simple the little memorandum of it is in your busy day — but one thing you must not do and one thing that is not true and that is to put everything down as "I'll want a house that cost $50,000" — or one that is beyond your means. To put that on me is unfair.

You may envy people their simple tasks and simple living but envy is quite different from being and in thinking of our home I thought in terms of your happiness.

Now I can give them all up again - I can give them up indefinitely - if I only know. I thought I did - I thought we were thinking positively in terms of yes - but alas it is a little like the Lindbergh theory - one starts with the conclusion that one is defeated - and that the simplest way is to accept the wave of the future.

Maybe it is. I'm very sleepless I must make up for last night and try for sleep - I pray for guidance - W.
