

125 East 57th Street,
New York City.
February 16, 1943.

Dear Sir:

Your advertisement for a position as gardener interested me as I am looking for a man for my place in Weston. If you are familiar with that section of the country, you may recall it as the first drive on the left after crossing the twin bridges on the Weston Road. There is a small sign on a tree "West Branch" but the house itself is not visible from the road.

The property consists of about sixty acres, largely woods and streams with natural trails. We have only a small flower and vegetable garden, but if we could find the right man for the place, we would like to have a cow or two, chickens, perhaps even a few pigs, sheep, and so forth.

We are in New York at present at the above address - telephone number EL 5 - 7343, and would be glad to see you by appointment and talk things over, or you could write giving an outline of your experience and the salary you would expect.

Yours truly,

Secretary to Mr. Dorr.

Box "F",
c/o Post Office Box "J", Ridgefield, Conn.