Dear Nell:

I'm returning herewith this rather pathetic letter from poor old Mr. Engel. His utter sincerity is written in every stroke of the pen.

This does not, however, change the rather unfortunate position in which we now find ourselves; and I, like you, have honestly very little hope that Enschede will come through with convincing enough proof that they can handle this job.

Meanwhile, we must wait again in order to be sure.

With all best wishes and kind regards.

As ever,
