Dear Nell:

I am enclosing the Russell-Rutter bill for binding, which appears to be in order and ready to pay.

I am also enclosing an invoice from New York Graphic Society for production services in the amount of $3,609.26. This is the correct amount for you to pay. I have deducted two small items which belong to us for the distribution of books direct from the bindery to key accounts in New York. We did this rather than bring all the books to Greenwich and then reship.

You may be puzzled by the item, "1908 copies folded & gathered @ $.125 totaling $238.50." These are the remainder of the sheets left over which we did not choose to bind at this time. But it is customary for the binder to charge for the labor involved. When we bind these up, this amount of 12 1/2¢ per book will be deducted from the cost of binding each copy at that time.

I have been awfully busy as you know, and with good reason, but we are beginning to see daylight. Will I see you again before you take off for Mexico?

Libby is sending you copies of all reviews as they come in. We have contracted for another ad in the Saturday Review issue on world travel and photography, which comes out on January 4. We will also try to get a better impression from the plate for the photograph.

As far as other promotion is concerned, it would be futile to do anything more at this time. But we will pick up again in the slow, careful and methodical promotion we do for our books as soon as Christmas and New Year's are behind us.

Best as ever.

Sincerely,

B.

P.S. To date we have shipped out about 500 copies of THE BARE FEET, not counting the review copies (82) or your own (75). There have been single orders and repeat orders as a result of the promotion and reviews. I am keeping a very careful record of all postage charges, but I see no point in totaling these until this whole operation of your personal distribution is completed.

Best again. B.
